
Covid-19: Medsquare, Mobilized During The Health Crisis To Ensure The Continuity Of Its Activity

The exceptional situation due to the spread of the coronavirus – as well as recent government directives – have led Medsquare to take exceptional measures in order to continue to provide the best support to healthcare establishments during this period of serious health crisis.

In this difficult context, Medsquare employees are now working from home to continue supporting their customers and partners and ensuring quality service. To guarantee business continuity, telephone and e-mail assistance are of course active for all healthcare professionals.

With all Medsquare member teams, we are following the evolution of the epidemic in real-time – working closely with our customers and partners to constantly adapt the measures and adopt the right behaviors.

We wish a lot of courage for everyone, and especially for the medical staff who are on the front line in this fight against the virus.
