
DMEA 2023: April 25 - April 27

DMEA Berlin
25–27 April 2023
Connecting Digital Health

DMEA — the Digital Health Industry Exhibition — is one of the most important conferences and trade fairs in the area of digital health. The event is taking place 25-27 April 2023 in Berlin, Germany.

This is Europe's largest event for Health IT gathering the industry's leading experts and decision-makers from every area of the healthcare sector into the Berlin exhibition halls. The event is expected to attract over 11,000 industry stakeholders, medical professionals and researchers who will be demonstrating and learning the latest products and digital healthcare solutions, including health IT, AI and more.

The program consists of inspiring keynotes, lectures, congress sessions and interactive formats.

The conference has increasingly developed into an international platform for digital healthcare solutions, providing an innovative hub for the exchange of information and best practices. It is aimed at trade visitors from the fields of medicine, care, health IT, politics, and science, offering all attendees an excellent opportunity to discover more about current developments and technologies.

More than 600 Health IT exhibitors and around 300 speakers will present their solutions and demonstrate how digital transformation will make complex healthcare systems more patient-focused and cost-effective.

What moves health IT today and tomorrow? Answers to this question and further discussions will be shared at the event from high-profile speakers during the workshops and lectures.
