
Volume 18 - Issue 6, 2018 - I-I-I Blog

Highlights from the I-I-I Blog

(I expert, I question, I answer)

Have you got something to say?

Visit <https://healthmanagement.org/blog/index> or contact edito@healthmanagement.org.

Koen Kas

HealthSkouts, Professor - Ghent University, Ghent, Belgium

□

TOP QUOTE FROM BLOG

Making healthcare delightful

"Being resilient, dealing with the unknown, with change, is exactly what will keep you and your company relevant and 'young'."

See more at: <https://iii.hm/or8>

Richard Corbridge

Editorial Board Member HealthManagement.org, Chief Digital Information Officer - Leeds Teaching Hospital NHS Trust, Leeds, UK

□

TOP QUOTE FROM BLOG

What must the NHS do to survive another 70 years?

In 2088 Bevan's original principles will still be here but with a digital fabric rather than bricks and mortar ensuring that at its 140th birthday the NHS will still be a national treasure.

See more at: <https://iii.hm/or9>

Michael Springer

Vice President of Technology & Operations - The Jacobs Institute

□

TOP QUOTE FROM BLOG:

"A thoughtful architectural design fosters collaboration amongst numerous experts in research and medicine alike. Close quarters and 'purposeful collisions' have informed better-designed research projects and developed improved treatment plans for patients."

See more at: <https://iii.hm/os1>

Pilar Manchón

Medical Director - Diagnostic Imaging Center Director, Integral Diagnosis Unit of Breast Pathology, Barcelona, Spain

□

TOP QUOTE FROM BLOG:

Why do we need to humanize radiology?

"Healthcare systems improvements in the last fifty years have been mainly technology-driven making radiology one of the medical specialities that has most benefited. Now it's the time to boost our humanity at the same level as technology to balance our skills up."

See more at : <https://iii.hm/orb>

Published on : Wed, 7 Nov 2018