
Siemens Medical Systems and Services for M

A 3-tesla magnetic resonance system for patient images with even higher resolution is to be installed later this year. Additionally, the renowned expert for sports medicine has entered into a tenyear strategic innovation agreement with Siemens. Under the agreement, Siemens will provide maintenance and ongoing updates to the systems of the Munich-based clinic, both in the form of software updates and by replacing the existing systems with next generation models.

"We want to offer innovative orthopedic and sports medicine that meets the highest quality demands and uses the latest technology," explained the company founders Dr.
